Meandering Along the Main Stem

By WASH FAYETTE

April 15 is somewhat early for swimming in the pools and streams of Fayette County, but for an hour or more Saturday afternoon five boys splashed around in a pool on the southern end of the Sewage Disposal tract east of Elm Street, where water was standing in a place excavated to obtain earth.

Jim Finney, operator of the disposal plant, saw the youngsters, and said they apparently enjoyed their swim in the pool as much as if the temperature had registered 90 instead of being in the 60's.

Here's a suggestion for the convenience of our friends:

We know how disconcerting it can be to want to telephone and get that busy buzz time after time. . . and this will at least relieve some of the congestion for phone 9701 in the Record-Herald news room. . . you probably will get some busy buzzes because our telephones are ringing all the time. . . or so it seems. . . but they will be fewer if both of them are put to use for incoming calls. . . the number of the phone on the society desk is not listed in the book. . . it is 5291. . . use it if you want to call about social happenings and news of interest to women. . . also use it if you want to tell about men and women in the service or for something "mainly about people". . . the only phone listed is 9701. . . it is on the city editor's desk and is for all general news. . . the number of the phone in the business office is 22121.

We want our friends to call. . . it is through their calls that we get the news we pass along to you and the rest. . . we know too well how difficult it is sometimes to get a call through. . . and we don't want you inconvenienced by busy buzzes any more than necessary. . . by spreading the calls over two phones, we hope your waits will be fewer and shorter. . . try to remember this:

9701—city editor for all general news.

5291—society editor who also will handle news of men and women in the service and that "mainly about people."

22121—the business office.

However, if you can't get through on one phone for some particular matter, please do not hesitate to call on either of the others. . . we would rather go all over the two offices than miss a call from any of you.

The recent rains have done much toward bringing out the grass, not to mention the lowly dandelions and if I do not miss my guess, you are going to see a superabundance of these yellow flowers (I never like to call a flower a weed) within the next few weeks.

For instance, I notice on the Court House lawn that there are literally tens of thousands of dandelions springing up that are certain to send up a series of thick, deep yellow blossoms within a short time.

Two or three years ago some WPA labor was put to work removing the dandelions from the lawn, and bushes of them were taken out and disposed of. However, it seems that for every one removed, a dozen have taken their place until the lawn is virtually green with dandelions.

SEDITION TRIAL FOR 30 PERSONS GETS UNDERWAY

Subsidy Question Is Back For Congress -- Sen. Taft Predicts Tax Increase

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(P)—Charged with attempting to set up a Fascist-type of government in the United States, 30 persons were called to trial in federal district court today on accusations of violating the peace-time sedition act.

Department of Justice attorneys, prosecuting the case, indicated that at least two days would be required to select a jury to try the 28 men and two women indicted.

Defense lawyers have served notice they would ask Attorney General Francis Biddle and J. Edgar Hoover, FBI director, to produce all reports on investigations on prospective jurors.

The defendants include Wilhelm Kunze of New York, one-time chief of the German-American Bund; August Klapprott, his deputy; George Sylvester Viereck, convicted Nazi propagandist, and Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling of Chicago, author of the "Red Network."

All 30 were indicted last January. They are charged specifically with conspiring with officials

MUTILATED BODY OF WOMAN FOUND

Gruesome Discovery Made at Scene of Another Murder

CAMDEN, Mo., April 17.—(P)—Highway patrolmen today found the headless body of a woman in the Lake of the Ozarks today just 200 yards from the spot where another woman's body, hacked and headless, was found yesterday.

The patrol said the body recovered today appeared to be that of a woman about 26 years old. Its head and a breast had been hacked off and the body mutilated, the patrol said, much like that of the woman found yesterday.

It was found by patrolmen making a minute search of the lake's shoreline seeking the point where the first body was hurled into the lake.

Neither body had been identified.

Jap Burma Supply Lines Cut

Glider Troops Flood Down Behind Invaders of India in Daring Counter Offensive -- Nips in Bad Elsewhere As Blasting of Far-Flung Bases Continues

By RICHARD C. BERGHOLZ (By the Associated Press)

Important enemy positions have been captured in the Allied counter-drive against the Japanese invasion of India, Adm. Lord Louis Mountbatten announced today, and very heavy casualties have been inflicted on the Nipponese.

The communique, issued from Mountbatten's new headquarters at Kandy, Ceylon, also reported the British had improved their positions in the hills northwest of Imphal, Allied supply base threatened by the Japanese offensive.

Official silence obscured operations of glider-borne British-Indian troops officially reported to have made their appearance near Mandalay. Today's communique, however, said the earlier reference to the location of the glider troops was erroneous. It did not specifically deny that ground forces were in the areas mentioned, at Yeu and Shwebo, about 60 miles north of Mandalay.

The confident picture of Allied operations in the southeast Asia command dispelled some of the vagueness and pessimism surrounding the official communique when the command was located at New Delhi, India, and subject to the censorship and military supervision of Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck, Indian commander-in-chief. Mountbatten's new Ceylon headquarters remove him from Auchinleck's supervision and bring him within direct contact with the Allied naval forces in the Indian ocean.

Glider Troops Flood Down

British-Indian glider troops floated down on two positions 60 and 70 miles from Mandalay and now straddle the Mandalay-Mytikina railroad which Japan uses to supply her forces driving into India. Other Allied troops have been operating around the trail terminus, Mytikina, for several weeks.

Although enemy soldiers ring the jungles bordering the Imphal plain, Allied troops, probably reinforced by air, still command the plain and city of Imphal, capital of the Indian state of Manipur on the Burma border.

A T. W. A. spokesman said the four engined aerial giant, built to carry 57 passengers, will be turned over to the Army Air Transport command.

Hughes and Frye were at the controls at the takeoff, as co-captains.

German Air Power Being Reduced By Allied Blasting Of Factories

By GLADWIN HILL

LONDON, April 17.—(P)—Although the Germans may have increased their frontline air strength in recent months by desperate "window dressing," it is believed in London that the Allies' "invisible" damage to Nazi plane production is yielding tangible dividends in slackened resistance.

Today there came from responsible air observers these facts on the air war:

Since November, Allied attacks on plane production sources—aside from the toll in combat—may have cost the Germans as many as 5,000 planes which they have been prevented from manufacturing and putting in the air.

This is reflected in the fact that, as recently as January, the Germans were throwing up as many as 600 fighters against the big American bombing attacks, but it is estimated from fliers' accounts and other reports that now they seldom are putting up more than 350 planes at any one time.

More Allied planes are being shot down now than six months ago, but this is believed by some merely to reflect the double scope of operations and some improvement in the Germans' defensive tactics. Proportional losses are remaining low.

For every plane in the front line an air force has a reserve of four or five in replacement pools and factories, and best informed Allied observers believe the Germans, in their "window-dressing" process, have sapped this reserve in order to maintain their front line strength.

The full extent of this drain—and the sapping of other war facilities, like factories—can be fully exposed only when the final break comes.

ESCAPE ROUTES UNDER FIRE AS COLLAPSE NEARS

American Bombers Blasting Factories and Supply Line Hubs in Balkans

By RICHARD MEMMURAY (By the Associated Press)

Sevastopol was afire and near collapse today as the Russians with siege guns, two armies, bombers and patrol boats bathed the last German and Romanian survivors in the Crimea with steel and flame.

Striking behind swaying Axis lines in the Balkans, Allied planes from Italy battered the Hungarian capital of Budapest anew, bombed the outlet of the narrow Iron Gate passage of the Danube through the Carpathians, attacked the Yugoslav capital of Belgrade for the first time and tangled the Romanian rail bottleneck of Brasov, 100 miles from the Russian lines.

War in Italy

Patrols probed all German fronts in Italy, destroying an ammunition dump and pillbox in one sector.

A Milan newspaper said Benito Mussolini was gravely ill and awaiting death among his German masters.

The United Nations radio at Algiers today said the Italian cabinet of Premier Pietro Badoglio has resigned, and that King Vittorio Emanuele has charged Badoglio with the creation of a new government on a broader base, following the desire expressed by various political parties.

Reds Absorb Crimea

All but around 150 square miles of the Crimea was in Russian hands and it appeared unlikely that the enemy stragglers who reached Sevastopol could hold out long. Of the 100,000 estimated Germans and Romanians in the Crimea when the whirlwind Russian offensive opened last week, 40,000 were reported in prison cages and 29,000 others were dead.

Yalta, summer residence of the czars, fell Sunday to the maritime army driving from Kerch. The Fourth Ukrainian Army last was reported advancing through the Sevastopol suburbs two miles from the heart of the city. On the main land front, other Russians stormed across the lower Dnepr River near Tiraspol, outflanking Chisinau and Tighina in Bessarabia. The German plight in the south was so serious the official Russian news agency Tass reported:

Nazis in Dilemma

"A large-scale transfer of German troops from west to east is under way. The German general staff has been able to convince leading Nazi circles that from every point of view, it would be more correct to weaken the western side of the European fortress." That is the side on which Gen. Eisenhower's masses are poised for invasion.

CAR MANUFACTURERS PLAN RECONVERSION

How To Give Everybody in Industry Big Question

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP)—How to give everybody in the industry an even break on post-war business was the foremost question today as the automobile industry opened its first reconversion conference with war production directors.

Two major disagreements stood out:

1. Virtually the whole industry vs. Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the WPB, who says it is a "physical impossibility" to let every manufacturer start making motor cars at the same minute.

2. The big companies against the little firms, with the former holding out for unrestricted production from the start and the smaller concerns insisting that WPB should control early output and assign each maker the proportion of the business he had before the industry went to war 26 months ago.

HOME CHILDREN SEE LION SHOW LAST REHEARSAL

Canteen Revue Goes on WHS Stage at 8 P. M. Monday

The 78-odd enrolled in the Fayette County Children's Home had a command performance of the Lions Club Canteen Revue Sunday afternoon, when the entire group sat in on the dress rehearsal of the show.

They heard the songs and solos, saw the special acts, laughed at the horse-play more than 24 hours before the one-night stand, to be in the high school auditorium Monday at 8 P. M. And, from all outward indications, they liked the show, which is a barometer of things to come Monday.

Ticket sales for the revue, which is to benefit the Lions Club canteen at the bus station here, boomed right from the beginning, reports indicate. Everything points toward a packed house to see Don Gibson, interloper, act as a buffer between End Men Robert A. Craig, H. H. Denton, Andrew Loudner, Jr., and Robert H. Terhune, the dances and tricky acts promised.

Eight Men Over 26 Left As 27 Go For Induction

Eight men over 26 who would otherwise have left with the group of 27 for armed service Monday were given postponements of induction because of their age and because they were actively engaged in essential war work, the draft board here disclosed today.

No names were mentioned, but it is understood the board carefully reviewed the cases of all men over 26 in the group scheduled to leave Monday to determine who would be eligible for postponement under the new ruling which says men under 26 will be drafted before men over 26 will be called.

The draft board is working steadily now reviewing in sequence all men under 26 in compliance with the order to draft that age group pool. A. the same time, men over 26 are being reconsidered as the board comes to their names with an eye toward the next pre-induction call sometime in May. It is emphasized that unless men over 26 are actively engaged in war work, they will probably not be given delays of induction.

'ARTICLES OF FAITH' GIVEN BY BRICKER

Ohio Presidential Aspirant Speaks in California

SAN JOSE, Calif., April 17.—(AP)—Ten articles of faith "on which we can base the course of our country's future" were enumerated to California Republicans last night by Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio, candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

Bricker addressed the California Republican assembly, an unofficial party organization.

"Back of all our endeavors there must be a mighty faith," said Bricker, then enumerated the 10 articles in which, he said, "we believe," as follows:

1. The strength of our returning soldiers as "one of the greatest assets this country will have after the war."
2. The dignity of the average man.
3. The principles of our Republican form of government.
4. The right of every man to earn his own living as he sees fit.
5. Divine Providence and the right of each one of us to worship as we choose.
6. In the economic strength and natural resources of our country.
7. In the honesty and loyalty of labor; the ingenuity and capability of management and the unselfish and tireless effort of agriculture.
8. The Bill of Rights, free speech and free communications.
9. In the traditions of the past.
10. In America: "Our country is at the threshold of its greatest era."

While Scanlon and his group went ahead with plans for their mass meeting, the banking committee continued hearings started earlier this month. Secretary of the Navy Knox and Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York were called before the Senate group, while the House committee met to hear OPA officials.

Subsidy Gang-up?

Self-styled "victory minded" congressmen declared today they were ready to give, and forcefully, at mass meetings on the question of subsidies.

Banking committees of both the House and Senate have arranged to bring price control legislation to the congressional floor early next month. Rep. Thomas E. Scanlon (D-Pa.) arranged a meeting for Wednesday and Thursday of consumers to oppose discontinuance of subsidy control. Scanlon said the meetings would be attended by farmers, labor representatives, war veterans, clergymen and educators.

The first area hit was in the vicinity of Gainesville, in Hall County, Ga., where, in 1936, another Tornado killed 183 persons and injured more than 200. The storm then rushed on across the Georgia line into South Carolina, striking at least seven places with resultant death and destruction of property.

Residents of Royston, a town of 1,400 in Franklin County, Ga., where 12 were killed, said the storm dipped into a row of houses three blocks from the business

TAFT AND TAXES

The Republican national convention's advisory committee on finance, taxation and money will recommend "realistically high" taxes to balance the post-war budget as quickly as possible, Senator Robert A. Taft of Cincinnati, asserts.

Taft, chairman of the committee, yesterday said experts already had drafted preliminary proposals but these might be revised extensively when the committee meets soon.

Taft expressed belief it would be necessary to keep taxes high after the war, but some adjustments might be needed in corporation levies to encourage private enterprises and reconversion.

"The thing we have got to do as quickly as possible," Taft declared, "is to bring the federal budget into balance and start paying off the enormous war debt."

VOTE ON LADY COURAGEOUS

Three Days in Which To Vote For Choice

Mrs. N. M. Reiff, chairman of the committee named to help pick "Lady Courageous" the woman they believe to be the most outstanding in bravery in connection with the world war, said Monday that ballots may be cast during the remainder of Monday, and on Tuesday and Wednesday, by those who know of some woman whom they wish to nominate for "Lady Courageous."

These ballot boxes are located at the State Theater, Record-Herald, Craig's Store and Steen's Store, and blank ballots may be obtained at any of the above-named places.

The committee will select six from the list nominated, and send it to the main committee in Cincinnati.

The same plan as followed here is being carried out in many other communities, and an airplane will land sometime Monday afternoon, at the Wilson Field, to promoting the plan.

Administration said, that an increase in the "B" ration is "not warranted in any part of the country."

It was learned that the ration quota of new synthetic passenger car tires will be boosted in May, probably by about 15 percent over the 750,000 allocated this month.

MILITARY GOVERNMENT

The American-British-Russian agreement reported in London for the post-war military government by Germany, and her bitter-end satellites was endorsed informally by members of the Senate military committee today as a "wise and necessary" step.

The agreement for ruling occupied Germany, as reported by Wes Gallagher of the Associated Press in London this week end, calls for Russian control over areas occupied by the Red army and for making U. S. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower the supreme authority in areas occupied by American and British forces.

NAZIS BEING SQUEEZED IN FLAMING SEVASTOPOL

The first Allied blow of the war at the Yugoslav capital, built on the Berlin-Istanbul railroad. The bombing of the Danubian Iron Gate was at Turnu-Severin on the Romanian side of the river. The Allies lost 13 planes, including seven heavy bombers, and destroyed 14 German craft.

Balkans Blasted Again

U. S. heavy bombers hit Sofia and Belgrade today.

Railroad yards in both Balkan capitals were the targets of "strong forces" of Fortresses and Liberators, a headquarters announcement said. In addition, aircraft components factories near Belgrade were hit.

The attack on Belgrade was the first assault of the war by Allied bombers on the Yugoslav capital itself, although nearby airdromes and an aircraft factory were attacked yesterday by Liberators and Fortresses.

First reports from returning fliers said some enemy planes were encountered and several destroyed in the blows against the two capitals.

A third Balkan capital, Budapest in Hungary, was attacked last night by Italy-based air forces, after daylight attacks Sunday against the Romanian rail centers of Brasov and Turnu-Severin.

Ohioan is Lone Survivor Of Crash in Wild Burma

FREMONT, April 17.—(AP)—The lone survivor of the crash of a flaming transport in Burma, Pfc. James Vaffis, is recovering today in a government hospital in Coral Gables, Fla.

In a letter received here by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Vaffis, Pfc. Vaffis gives the first detailed account of his experiences.

He was a radioman on an air transport command plane ferrying supplies to China by way of Burma. The plane was flying at 20,000 feet when it went into a spin. The descent was so rapid he didn't even have time to buckle his parachute.

Regaining consciousness after crashing with the burning ship, Vaffis was lying in a pool of gasoline in the flaming wreckage, critically burned. All that was left of his three companions were charred bones. They were buried on the spot with a scrap of a propeller blade for a marker.

A band of Burmese head-hunters found him two days later and carried him in a bamboo litter over the wild Himalaya mountains. All he had to eat for 12 days were two small slices of wild cucumber while he drank the moisture inside bamboo stalks.

Vaffis weighed only 80 pounds when his location was discovered and an American flight surgeon was sent to his rescue. Planes flown from India dropped whole blood and blood plasma.

He and the surgeon were forced to hide behind Japanese lines for six weeks because he was too weak to travel. During the trek through the jungle by litter a poisonous snake dropped from a tree and landed on his chest. The natives dropped the litter and ran but finally the chief returned and knocked it off.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The bloody exhibition of warfare at close quarters, now being staged in the environs of the great Crimean naval base of Sevastopol as the Red forces fling themselves upon the cornered Hitlerites, naturally claims the main attention of a world which never ceases to thrill over brave deeds.

This battle represents the climax of the brilliant Soviet campaign which has broken Hitler's hold on Southern Russia. When historic Sevastopol falls—as fall it must—it will restore to the Muscovites the Crimean Peninsula, which has provided the Nazi dictator with a powerful air, naval and military base that has been a mighty asset to him in three ways: It has shielded his right flank on the mainland. It long enabled him to continue his efforts (though ineffectually) to break into the Caucasian oil fields which he so badly needed. It has permitted him to control the northern waters of the Black Sea and the vital coasts of Rumania and Bulgaria.

Still, despite the claim of Sevastopol to the limelight, there's another great Red victory upon the southeastern Polish front which we must not overlook. That's the capture of the strategic railway junction of Tarnopol after 38 days of fierce fighting in which the German garrison of 16,000 was annihilated, barring 2,400 who surrendered.

Some weeks ago I invited you to keep an eye on this battle as one of the highly important engagements of the war. Tarnopol has been the chief bulwark of the Hitlerian line between the Pripet Marshes on the north and the Carpathians on the south. That line has been a barrier to the heart of Poland—on the road to Berlin.

The capture of Tarnopol uncovers another even bigger prize—the great railway junction of Lwow a little to the west. This will be the next main objective of the Muscovites in that sector. The capture of Lwow should go far towards forcing the Germans to fall back to the line of the Vistula. It also certainly would expedite the Red drive through the Carpathians into Czechoslovakia at the extreme southern end of the Nazi battleline.

The tenacity with which the Hitlerites have been clinging to Tarnopol and the rest of the line between the Pripet Marshes and the Carpathians is clear indication of the importance they attach to this front. It means that if they have the reserves they will defend Lwow and other key points to the last ditch.

This question of reserves and material presents Hitler with a tough dilemma. Shall he take the chance of withdrawing troops from western Europe to meet the Russian menace on the eve of the invasion by the western allies? It's a terrible gamble whichever way he plays it.

In this connection a Tass News Agency dispatch, broadcast from Moscow last night, said a large scale transfer of German troops from west to east was under way. Tass quoted "private information" from Istanbul.

TIRES AND WHEELS STOLEN FROM AUTO

Sheriff Investigating Theft Saturday Night

Thieves stole two tires and wheels from Earl Smith's Dodge automobile in his garage on the Sargent Road, five miles east of this city, late Saturday night.

Smith had reached home from this city about 11 P.M. and placed his car in the garage as usual.

Sunday morning when he went to the garage the rear wheels were missing. The tires were 600 x 16, Goodyear all-weather.

Sheriff W. H. Ichniower was notified and is investigating the theft.

Penalty for such thefts is very severe.

The first recorded almanac was written in 1380 in England.

We Stand Squarely for the Best Interest of the Citizens of Washington C. H. and Fayette County.

Not So Expert
In view of the tremendous amount of propaganda sent forth, the average citizen of this country is completely confused as to our foreign policy, if we have one. It remains one of the greatest paradoxes of the day that many persons still look upon President Roosevelt as an "expert" in international affairs.

They see on all sides the fantastic results of his domestic policies. They admit that the domestic front is in a state of utter confusion, brought about by the meddling of a chaotic-minded bureaucracy, but still they look upon the same thing in international affairs and have not yet awakened to the fact that Mr. Roosevelt is proving inept in shaping foreign policy.

Instead of insisting upon a United Nations political council to handle the perplexing problems which arise every day, Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull have talked about postponing these matters until after the war is won.

Why they insist on holding to this strange course is a deep mystery. Already the problems of Poland, of Finland, of Italy, of Free France, of Spain, have risen to irritate and confuse the peoples of the Allied nations. The President of the United States hangs back, seemingly always waiting for Winston Churchill to make up his mind.

The Atlantic meeting, the Washington conferences, Quebec, Cairo, Teheran—these were not United Nations council meetings. At only one of them was Russia represented. At only one, China. Another Presidential trip will solve nothing. The people need more than gold-braid meetings.

But Mr. Roosevelt apparently sees none of this, no more than he seemingly realizes what his theory-minded, better-world-dreaming bureaucrats have done to the domestic life of the United States.

Regular Inspections To End
After April 20, "A," "B" and "C" gasoline card holders will not need to have the tires on their passenger cars periodically inspected in order to obtain "gas" coupons. Only those needing replacement tires will be required to present inspection certificates.

OPA says the average driver is now taking good care of the thinning rubber on which his wheels go round. Credit for this education does not belong entirely to compulsory tire inspection. There is also staring motorists in the face the well-publicized probability that it will be a long time before many new tires are released to civilians. We all know we've got to make what we have last.

OPA is to be congratulated on recognizing that enough is enough and that the continuance of tire inspection would be an annoyance contributing nothing to winning the war.

Once the rule was that the man walked always on the outside of the sidewalk. If walking with two women, however, it is now correct if the man prefers to walk between them.

Today's Horoscope
If this is your birthday, you are an ardent reader and try to improve yourself generally. You are sensitive and, when happy, are very exuberant; but when unhappy you are extremely quiet. You are affectionate and require a deep and understanding love, which you reciprocate. Do not be careless with money matters during the next year, or correspondence, either, and you will enjoy much good fortune, particularly through elders. Promotion is also possible during this period. Born today a child, while being financially fortunate in many ways, with inheritance not unlikely, will, nevertheless, be liable to loss and trouble through attempted fraud and or imposition.

One-Minute Test Answers

2. Clementine.
3. An ampersand.

producing from his own crops the gasoline needed to run his tractors, and coal to heat his home.

The possibilities suggested by Dr. Berl are almost incredible. From 100 long tons of Louisiana dry sugar cane, he says, modern processes will make 2,980 gallons of gasoline, 3,430 gallons of middle oil, 1,210 gallons of lubricating oil, and 8.45 tons of raw cane sugar.

The best thing about such agricultural production is that it can replace the crude natural petroleum, whose reserves in this country are expected, by some experts, to be used up in about 15 years at the present rate of consumption. Future power will be grown in the fields and, by chemical process, made available for industrial use.

The famous Merlin and all other magicians may now withdraw and resign their magic to hard-headed scientists who really know something about it. Soon the ordinary motorist may be running his car on fuel generated by a little production plant in one corner of his vegetable garden.

Plenty of Foreign Chatter
In Genesis, Babel was only a city, presumably not over large, with a tower which became notorious because of the confusion of tongues that took place in it. In 1945, and for a time thereafter, Babel will be a nation, one of the greatest in the world, known as the United States.

After World War I, veterans came home with vague smatterings of French, and a few with ideas English (insular patois) and Italian. After World War II the boys will be parley-voing in at least a score of languages, including the Arabic.
We stay-at-homes are going to have a lot to learn when that time comes.

New Era of Sight Coming After War

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.
"POLAROID" is a word introduced not long ago to the science of physics, about which I guarantee you will hear a great deal in the brave new world of the future after this conflict is over. What it represents is, in my opinion, more important for mankind than the polaroid itself.
Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.
kind than all the tax bills, and all the politicians, and all the labor unions, and all the schemes of socialism and communism and fascism. But this represents an old grouch of mine—why so much effort is given to politics and so little to the enormously more important subjects of science.
Science has always caused more change and happiness in mankind's life than all the politics that ever happened. Mankind went through the torture of the Magna Charta, the Bill of Rights, and the Reform Bill, the French Revolution, the Emancipation Proclamation and people rushed excitedly around and called each other all kinds of names, and heads were bashed in and armies were mobilized and then science quietly laid the steam engine in the lap of mankind and it changed every detail of everyone's life more than all the taxes and charters and bills and proclamations, yet no congress had to convene to get it done.

Enlarges Scope of Sight
But to get away from politicians and back to polaroid. It is liable to cause a revolution in our way of living because it enlarges the scope of one of our senses—sight. It is a platitude to remind you that we are at the mercy of our senses, but every once in a while we realize how limited they are and how much more extended the senses of some animals are.
Your dog has a far wider range of hearing than you have: there is a little gadget called Dalton's whistle that can be blown and you will hear no sound at all, but your dog pricks up his ears, moves around and begins to investigate. Your cat does better on a black night than you do even with a load of Vitamin A. And we would all probably be embarrassed at first if we were suddenly endowed with the range and delicacy of smell a wild animal has.

Polaroid is an extension of vision by an arrangement of glasses. You can get it, or at least the armed forces can get it, in the form of goggles and spectacles, and camera filters and periscopes and angle finders. The United States armed forces have a great advantage in the use of polaroid because our enemies lack the skill and materials to make the instruments.

Selective Limiting of Vision
Polarized light gives you a new kind of vision by really limiting it, or rather, selecting out certain kinds of light rays for you to see. If you sit by an open window you can wave to a friend out the window in any direction, but if you are in jail behind a barred window you can wave to him only up and down. Polarized light rays come to your eyes in only one plane, either up or down or sideways. Polarized lenses are "optical slots" through which light vibrations have to squeeze.

But with that advantage you can see a certain object in a landscape that would be lost in confusion otherwise—this is why it is so valuable for airplane bombing. With polarized lenses glare can be controlled, completely eliminated. It will be a standard equipment of automobile headlights. These headlights besides eliminating glare will pick out details of the road, pedestrians and driving landmarks, even when passing another car. Office lighting will be changed, eliminating glare and increasing visibility.
We are on the verge of a new era of sight.

NORTH to DANGER by TOM GILL
SYNOPSIS
Having helped Colin Rae, of the Hendrick's Bay Company, to escape mysterious pursuers at Winnipeg, the youthful Irina Meredith went north to meet her elderly fiancé, Rodney Selkirk, at Learmonth. Colin is investigating the seemingly frail, mild mannered Jonathan Dove, head of two Indian schools and a power among trappers. "Once I heard him called the most dangerous man in Canada," Colin told Irina. Eluding Dove, left behind in Winnipeg, Colin and Irina flew in a small plane, owned and piloted by Blair Benedict, former school-girl chum of Colin. Heavy snow forced her to make an emergency landing at Trappers Lake where the veteran Alec Gunn sheltered the trio. Next morning, Alec and Blair started on foot for Learmonth, Irina and Colin soon following. Colin tells Selkirk what he knows of the murder of Van Downe, another Company agent, and why he still suspects Dove though the latter has been cleared officially.
CHAPTER NINE
Again Selkirk shook his head. "After all, your only reason for suspicion lies in seeing Dove on the trail."
"No, you're wrong," Colin rose to his feet. "I've two more reasons. First, Dove is worried; he doesn't know how much Van Downe told me. The day I left Wolverine, two of Dove's trappers came down on the same train. I'm pretty sure they went through my baggage, and I think they intended to give me the works and then swear I started a fight. As soon as it was dark, I slipped off the train and hired a car to Winnipeg. They were there ahead of me; they figured that I'd make straight for the company office with any information I might have, and they were waiting for me."
"I dodged them and went to the hotel. I knew if I didn't get out of Winnipeg quick, they were bound to catch up with me. At the hotel I heard Miss Meredith ask about flying to Learmonth, and we chartered Blair's plane and flew here. By this time, Dove must know where I am, but the last boat of the year left two days ago, there are no more planes to charter in Winnipeg, and Canadian Airways won't start until the lakes freeze. So I've some time to look around."
"And after that?"
"After that, my guess is Dove will be here, too; and if he decides I'm really dangerous—" Colin gave a short laugh of irritation. "I never thought I had a nerve in my body, but I can't forget the look on Van Downe's face, and I won't ever forget the smoke rising from his cigar. You said you had two reasons for believing Dove guilty. What was the second?"
"This." From his pocket Colin drew out a photograph. It was wrinkled and yellow with age, but it showed a group of twelve young officers of the Royal Canadian Air Force. "This was taken in nineteen-seventeen. I found it behind Van Downe's desk. He might have been looking at it the night of his death and shoved it out of sight when he heard the killer coming. Rod, I believe this photograph is what he wanted me to see."

Colin pointed to one of the men. "That's Van Downe. He was among the youngest pilots in the First World War. But look at that little fellow on the left. See anything familiar?"
Curiously Selkirk held it to the light. "Something perhaps." He straightened. "It certainly couldn't be Dove."
"I wonder. I've asked myself that question a hundred times. The face bears no resemblance, but the eyes—and the hands."
"Can't you trace it back?"
"That was one reason I went to Winnipeg. I—" Colin stopped. Behind him the door creaked. No

On the threshold, blandly smiling, stood Jonathan Dove.
wound stirred, but it was as if a cold draft touched him, and he saw Selkirk rising in his chair. Again the creak of hinges, the soft scrape of leather on the floor. Slowly, almost against his will, Colin forced himself to turn.
The door was open wide, and on the threshold, blandly smiling, stood Jonathan Dove.
Very quietly Dove came toward them. His mild gray eyes lingered fleetingly on Selkirk's face, then moved to Colin's, and a smile touched the little man's lips. "Nice to be back, isn't it?" he murmured. "May I sit down?"
The voice was hesitant, as if he felt himself to be an unexpected guest, hopeful of welcome, but not quite confident.
Struck silent with amazement, Colin did not answer. He scarcely heard. The blood singing in his ears, the quickened pounding of his heart, all testified to his refusal to accept the stark impossibility of Dove's presence there. Dove simply couldn't be in Learmonth; Dove was in Winnipeg. No planes were to be chartered. Yet here before him, standing, Colin imagined security had been short-lived—once more the two antagonists were face to face.
Fighting against that growing sense of unreality, Colin had to ac-

Company as soon as I reached Learmonth. He buried his hands deep in his pockets and leaned back. "You won't mind if I speak candidly, will you? In a country where the few white people are always being thrown together, it makes living more simple to know where we all stand. Don't you think so, Mr. Rae?"
Colin picked up his pipe. "I can tell better when I know what's on your mind."
"The thing on my mind, Mr. Rae, is yourself."
"I'm beginning to suspect it."
"Why shouldn't you? And I'll tell you very frankly why. One month ago the Bay Company sent you to Wolverine for no discernible reason except to hamper my work at the school. After Van Downe's death you tried to hurt my reputation by making damaging implications at the inquest."
"I said no more than you yourself admitted."
"There are ways of saying things. It is unpleasant to be called a murderer even by indirection. But that is past, and you are now in Learmonth. What I want to know is this: has the company sent you here to interfere with my school again? In other words, Mr. Rae, is it to be a finish fight?"

Whammer Sans Glamour in the Show

By CLAYTON IRWIN
On the stage of a Broadway theater a pretty and widely-known gal orchestra leader, dressed in a brilliant red gown that dipped low both fore and aft, swayed to the romantic rhythms of the band.
In the wings, Georgia Gibbs stood and watched, and absently tugged at the jacket of her plain, tailored suit.
"See what I mean?" she said, bobbing her head toward the stage. "You step out to sing with an eye-filler like that working back of you and you'd better have something, or you lay a nice, big egg. I'd be crazy to put on a slinky gown and try to compete with 'em on the same basis. I know my limitations, and I'm not foolin'."
"If the customers want glamour from me, they'll have to get it out of my songs."
Actually, she has charm, pretty blonde hair and a lot of curves where they count most. But the tailored suit has become Georgia's trademark, and she probably is the only top singer in the country deliberately to turn thumbs down on sartorial razzle-dazzle.
Part of this goes back to Chapter One of her two-chapter career. Five years ago, as Freda Gibson, she was a dance band canary out of Worcester, Mass., and got her start in radio when Maestro Richard Himber heard one of her recordings and signed her, sight unseen.
In the next three years she climbed rapidly — but then dropped just as fast. Soon she was "at leisure" — the dignified way of saying she was out of a job.
She sat down for a strategy conference with some friends: an orchestra leader, an arranger, a music publisher and a press agent. They decided she needed a new personality, more color. They rechristened her Georgia Gibbs, worked out a new singing style, gave her a new hair-do and tossed in the idea of the suits as an afterthought.
She caught on again quickly. Comparisons of her records showed the same tone quality, but more wallop, more nuances, more tricks. She started getting night club engagements and theater dates, and landed back on the radio as a featured performer.
Georgia is a pleasant young woman with an aggressive determination that reminds you of Donald Duck. For instance, right now she's riled up over the number that practically everyone except Georgia sings as "Shoo, Shoo, Baby."
"That," she says, "is silly, besides being all wrong. It's a swing lullaby, and the words, correctly, are, 'Sh, Sh, Baby.'"
Georgia ought to know. She introduced it.

Pointers on Planting Victory Seeds Indoors
By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Association
ONE DOES NOT have to possess a "green thumb" to grow Victory seeds successfully indoors. Certain practical procedures should be followed, after which nature should finish the job.
An efficient and economical way to sow seeds of average size in a flat is illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Cut off a corner of the seed packet, then "tap" out the seeds, one or two at a time.
Seeds sown in a flat should be evenly covered with soil. Fine seeds are merely pressed down into the soil. Label the rows with name stakes, as illustrated, for identification of the seedlings when they appear.
After the seeds have been planted the flat should be watered from the bottom up. Set the flat in a tub or container holding about one inch of water. When the soil of the top of the flat becomes moist, lift the flat out of the water and place it in a room with a steady temperature of 65 degrees.
A pane of glass placed over the top of the flat, as illustrated, will help to keep the surface of the soil from becoming too dry. If the glass "drips moisture" raise it just enough to allow for the circulation of air beneath it. Place a sheet of wrapping paper over the glass, as illustrated, to provide needed warmth and darkness for the seeds.

Washington at a Glance By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Secretary of State Cordell Hull may have made greater speeches in his long political life than his recent one on U. S. foreign policy, but none more dramatic or more politically significant.
The aging white-haired secretary sat in the regular newscasting room in the Columbia broadcasting studios.
He was suffering from a cold and showed he didn't feel well. His only audience in the studio was a handful of state department assistants, including Michael J. McDermott, his director of information, and several radio technicians.
At his elbow sat alert Assistant Secretary Breckinridge Long, following line for line with his finger a copy of the speech. There was a microphone before him, too, dead for the time being, but ready to be snapped on in a flash, should Mr. Hull's voice leave him or he become too ill to continue.
Few persons can realize the strain of a 42-minute, unbroken radio speech. There aren't many young, experienced actors who could handle it without coming to the end exhausted.
Secretary Hull, at his best, is not a good radio speaker. He has trouble with his esses. He cannot convey over the air the fire and force he displays in talking to small groups. But if there is any one interested in our foreign policy or our politics who, through the absence of that force, failed to grasp the full significance of it, he better get a copy and start studying.
I'm going to discuss the political importance of it here on the homefront and on the coming elections.
Within 24 hours, many observers were saying that he had written the foreign policy plank for the Democratic convention in Chicago in July. In part they can't be wrong. Coming events may change some details, but if President Roosevelt is nominated for a fourth term, then it certainly is the Democratic foreign policy plank.
In view of that, the specific issues he clarified are vitally important. Some of them were:
His positive declaration that we could not recognize De Gaulle's Committee for National Liberation as the government of France, unless a freed French people by democratic process decreed it so.
That an essential understanding between Britain, Russia, China and the United States must be the basis for all organized international action.
That work already has been started on "the form and substance" of an international organization to maintain peace and that we will be a party to it.
That Congress should and is hereby invited to lend bipartisan aid in working out the details of our foreign policy.

Miami Alumni Association Supper Enjoyed by Members At High School Sunday Eve

W. J. Hilty, county superintendent of schools, was elected president of the Miami Alumni Association here at a potluck supper held in the home economics rooms of Washington C. H. High School Sunday night.

Dr. E. M. Tanruther, director of elementary education at McGuffey School in Oxford, was the speaker. He told of the facilities of Miami University now and gave the alumni attending a chance to compare the "good old days" with the present systems and to give prospective students an idea of what would be in store for them if they attended Miami.

He said the enrollment, including Navy V-12 students, totaled 3,600 now. A temporary barracks for student cooks is among the new housing facilities on the campus. Dr. Tanruther told the 35 men and women attending the meeting. The student cooks are all potential army or navy chefs.

A 300 acre airport with two hangars to give flying instruction to students is one of the newer parts of the university's facilities, Dr. Tanruther said. Housing on the campus is enlarged now and Miami University still rates as one of the outstanding universities in the nation in his respect, he stated.

Basic expenses are $400 a year, Dr. Tanruther said. Work opportunities are good and if a student desires, he may earn nearly all his board, room and tuition expenses.

Other officers of the association elected Sunday are Mrs. A. D. Woodmansee, vice-president and Mrs. John Alton, secretary. Hilty succeeds V. F. Crawford and Mrs. Alton steps into the position of Mrs. Willard Bitzer.

Attending the meeting were Karl J. Kay, who played several Miami songs as piano numbers, Mr. and Mrs. Loren Hynes, Cary M. Scott of Frankfort, Mrs. Hugh Sollars, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Zimmerman, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Maddux, Miss Florence A. Prime of Hillsboro, Miss Corda McCafferty, Miss Golda Baughn, Miss Louise Zurfue of Hillsboro, Miss Margaret Moore of Hillsboro, Mrs. E. M. Tanruther, Paul D. Fairley of Greenfield, Mr. and Mrs. Glen L. Smith, Mrs. Ruby Fountain, Mr. and Mrs. V. F. Crawford, Mrs. Willard Bitzer, Misses Dixie Lou Graves, Janice Murray, Beverly Long and Virginia Mark.

Member of Congress, 7th Ohio District

The Congress reconvened last Wednesday, following the Easter recess, and the House immediately took up consideration of the largest Navy Appropriation Bill in the nation's history. This measure, which is now in the Senate, following House approval, calls for the appropriation of $32,647,134.336.00 for Navy expansion and operation in the coming fiscal year, beginning July 1st next. It is contemplated the appropriation will finance a program to give the Navy an estimated force of 6,623 self-propelled vessels, 74,925 non-self-propelled ships and 19,035 naval planes, exclusive of training ships and equipment, shore establishments, etc., to be manned by 3,657,467 sailors, Marines and Coastguardsmen.

The Banking and Currency committee of the House last Wednesday began hearings on the bill to extend the life of the Price Control Act, and with it, as its administrative agency, the Office of Price Administration. A real battle is expected to develop within the committee over amendments to limit and restrict many of the powers and activities of the OPA. A similar measure is now receiving consideration by a Senate committee. Hearings are expected to continue for several weeks before the final draft of the legislation is brought to the floor for debate and vote.

The House Special Committee on Petroleum will begin hearings Wednesday of this week on the distribution and rationing of gasoline and oil. Present plans, according to committee members, call for a thorough investigation of rationing practices, and especially of the so-called black market in gasoline, which has grown to alarming proportions in the last few months. The method of granting gasoline allotments for farm use will also be reviewed by the committee, as well as the recent order reducing a card rations. Special attention will also be devoted to the possibility of increasing gasoline and oil supplies in some sections of the nation.

timated that at present not more than three hundred thousand soldiers are being used on the actual combat fronts. At least one-half of the nearly eight million men in the army are as thoroughly trained as it is possible for them to be without actual battle experience. As many as two million of them may take part in the impending European invasion. Others will go into action in the Pacific, while still others will be needed for replacements. Just what use will be made of the several million soldiers remaining has not been announced. Many members of Congress are beginning to feel additional information should be furnished to justify the further drafting of fathers and essential war workers into the armed forces.

While a sub-committee of the Military Affairs Committee of the House is giving considerable study and attention to the problem of best using, in essential war work, the services of thousands of men being rejected for military duty and rated 4-F by Selective Service, it is doubtful Congress will pass legislation drafting such individuals for civilian work. There is quite a difference between drafting men for military service and drafting them for employment in private industries for the personal profit of others. At the same time considerable evidence is being submitted to substantiate reports that many employees in war industries, who have been called for induction and rated 4-F in the draft, have immediately quit their war jobs, evidently thinking it no longer necessary to work to escape military service. So the Congressional Committee is seeking some way to compel these individuals to contribute to the national war effort without resorting to the enactment of a dangerous and perhaps unconditional law to draft citizens for civilian work. At the present time it appears unlikely that the Congress will soon seriously consider the passage of the proposed all-embracing National Service Act, which would give the Federal government power to draft American men and women to work when and where ordered.

A Tasty Dish From the Tropical Lands of Fiestas

Middle America, the tropical Caribbean land of brilliant fiestas...

Pork Kidneys, Middle American Style
1 pound pork kidneys
2 tablespoons flour
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons fat
1 cup minced onion
1 cup chopped tomato
1-2 cup stock (or water)
1 tablespoon parsley, minced
Wash the kidneys, split, core and slice them, then allow to soak for 30 minutes in salted water to which has been added half a cup of vinegar. Mix flour, salt and pepper. Drain and dry the kidneys and toss in the flour mixture. Melt fat in a skillet, add onion and fry gently until soft. Add kidneys and fry, stirring constantly, until evenly browned. Add the tomatoes, stir well, then add the stock or water and simmer for ten minutes, stirring occasionally. Serve sprinkled with parsley. Serves 4. Mashed potatoes and chopped spinach go particularly well with this dish.

unfamiliar meats. The chops and steaks we miss so sorely were never served frequently there, a skillfully seasoned casserole or stew being considered a much greater triumph.

Here is a typical recipe featuring pork kidneys with onion and tomato, a perfect flavor combination that will instantly make a hit with the entire family, we believe. Pork kidneys are not rationed, but because of their more pronounced flavor they are not as popular as lamb or veal kidneys and are consequently frequently available when the other varieties are nowhere to be found. Soaked as the recipe recommends, and cooked this quick tasty way, the pork kidneys are as delicate-textured and delicious as you could possibly wish--so be sure to clip this recipe for your permanent file as well as your wartime collection.

Race Program Outlined For Fair Here With Purses Estimated At Nearly $7,000

Purses with an estimated value of $5,650—a day—serve as one of the magnets which are confidently expected to draw some of the best trotters and pacers in the country here for four days of racing at this year's renewal of the Fayette County Fair the last week of July.

The fair's speed committee of George A. Steen, chairman, Frank E. Ellis, Walter Sollars, John Cannon and Ray Brandenburg, president of the board of directors, have drawn up the program that is marked by both class and variety. Stakes—those races in which only horses whose owners believe to be better than average are entered—predominate.

Attesting to the calibre of racing in prospect here, members of the committee pointed to the list of two-year-old trotters and pacers and three-year-old trotters and pacers entered in just those four stakes. Owners have paid up for 75 two-year-old pacers, 66 two-year-old trotters, 47 three-year-old pacers and 38 three-year-old trotters. Some will fall by the wayside as training progresses, through injury, failure to develop sufficient speed and many other causes, but members of the committee expressed confidence that

YANKS AND CARDINALS PICKED TO REPEAT AS BASEBALL OPENER NEARS

By FRITZ HOWELL

NEW YORK, April 17.—(AP)—A three-way scrap for the 1944 American League pennant, with the world champion New York Yankees finally nosing out Washington and Chicago, was predicted today by the country's baseball writers for the season starting tomorrow.

Of 64 writers taking part in the annual "pick 'em" poll of the Associated Press, 50 designated the Yankees to take their fourth straight junior league championship. Chicago drew 17 first place ballots and Washington 14, but the Senators nosed out the White Sox for second place in the overall voting under which the clubs received eight points for a first-place selection, seven for second, etc.

In the overall race New York was given 453 of a possible 512 votes, Washington 424 and Chicago 413. Other teams were picked to finish in this order: Cleveland and Philadelphia. Last year's pennant race wound up like this: New York, Washington, Cleveland, Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis, Boston and Philadelphia.

In the National League poll St. Louis was a standout to take its third straight pennant, getting 57 of 67 first place votes. Cincinnati was picked for second, followed by the others in this order: Chicago, Pittsburgh, Brooklyn, New York, Philadelphia and Boston.

The scribbles had a tough time spotting the St. Louis Browns and Boston Red Sox in the American League survey, each drawing votes for all eight positions, while Chicago was tabbed for all except the last berth, and Cleveland for all except first and last positions.

The National poll had the four western clubs in the first division, and the eastern teams in the second. The American, however, had the four western teams in the middle, with two eastern clubs on top and two on the bottom.

-Spying- On Sports By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

Another major league season opens tomorrow and in place of the usual words of wisdom about who'll win the pennants, this corner offers a different prediction: If baseball doesn't have a successful season financially, you can hang the blame on managers, clubs owners, baseball writers, etc., who keep bringing up the fact the teams are far below the usual standards. . . Fans already have shown they'll turn out for almost any sort of real contest, but they're liable to become discouraged if they hear repeatedly they can see only fourth-rate baseball.

Material Gains

Shag Shaughnessy, international league proxy who used to be quite a football player, likes to tell how he applied knowledge acquired building dugouts in France to football. . . During the last war, doughboys discovered that if they left an air space between two layers of steel and dirt in a dugout roof, it would absorb the shock of a shell explosion. . . When he returned to football with a couple of bunged-up shoulders, Shag remembered that and designed shoulder pads with similar shock-absorbing space.

Monday Matinee

Bob Coleman, Braves manager, made his big league debut with Pittsburgh, June 13, 1913, and handled 13 chances against the Giants. His club, the first year the national collegiate A. A. basketball tournament was held, it went into the red for about $2,500 out of a $7,000 bankroll that represented the accumulation of years in the treasury. It all has been paid back now. . . The Boston Yankees, with no coach and no players, already have a one-boy football team in 12-year-old Parker Dweley of Belmont, Mass., who pestered Ted Collins with applications for the job of mascot until Ted signed him up.

not only would enough remain to build up the purses to sizeable proportions but also make fields that would be so large they would have to be split, thus giving the crowds an extra race for their admission price.

Many horsemen also have been attracted here by the three consecutive weeks of racing with less than 30 miles between Fairs at Xenia and Wilmington. The Fair here, one of the first in Ohio again, also is the first on this short-circuit which has been given the blessing of the horsemen. After it comes the one at Xenia and then Wilmington. The programs are essentially the same at all three; all offer the Tri-County Stakes open class events and stakes for the two-year-olds and three-year-olds under the banner of the Ohio Colt Racing Association.

With a total of 226 youngsters named for these four stakes, the Fair here tops the entry lists. The Fayette County Fair was one of the original sponsors of these features and has the distinction of having the largest entry list each year.

Dr. Hugh M. (Doc) Parshall, for years the country's premier reinsman, is to be the official starter.

In a letter to his local newspaper a Wisconsin taxpayer commented on a proposal to mortgage the village water works for an improvement program. A recent editorial in the paper had emphasized the need for regular publication of reports on public funds. The taxpayer strongly endorsed this stand.

TALKING IT OVER—Corp. Luis Roldan, left, and Pfc. Daniel Groden, Michigan State college AST students, relax from studies by comparing notes of their activities on opposite sides of the Spanish Civil war.

AIMING—BUT NOT AT EACH OTHER—Back in 1936 Corps. Luis Roldan, left, and Pfc. Daniel Groden were firing at not with—each other. Ex-Rebel Roldan and Ex-Loyalist Groden are shown on ATS rifle range.

Corporal Roldan speaks Spanish and Portuguese fluently and currently is studying Italian, while Private Groden, who learned some Spanish during his service, is completing his "course" now.

Both men are agreed that Yankee soldiers are the "best clothed, fed and housed" in the world. Their opinion is drawn from their experience in the bitter Spanish fighting, regarded in retrospect, as having been a proving ground for Axis methods and material.

Upon release from the Falangist forces in 1937, Roldan came to New York City with funds supplied him by relatives. He worked for a year and established that he could support his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Roldan, who were permitted by the state department to enter this country. They since have become naturalized.

Roldan, incidentally, was born in this country in 1917, but his parents took him back to Spain in 1923 to educate him there.

Groden, 35, is married, his wife living in New York City. He is a graduate of New York City college. Prior to being assigned to Michigan State college's A. S. T. P. unit, he was station at Fort Brady, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

GRAIN MARKET NEWS SUMMARY

CHICAGO, April 17.—(AP)—Small declines were recorded in wheat today as heavy snows were reported in western Kansas, an area in need of moisture, and Canadian dispatches credited the Commodity Credit Corporation with purchasing 5,500,000 bushels of Canadian wheat last week. American interests also took 300,000 bushels of Canadian rye.

Independent strength was shown by the May rye future, which was above its previous close for a major part of the session. Some of the buying of this delivery was believed to be against sales of deferred contracts. Oats and deferred rye months lost ground on reports the government shortly would offer to sell and haul surplus corn for farmers.

May contracts of wheat, oats and barley were unchanged at closing. Deferred wheat deliveries closed 1/4-1/2 lower, July $1.68 1/2, deferred oats 1-1/2 lower, July 78 1/2, deferred barley unchanged to 1/2 higher, July $1.25 1/2, and $1.29 1/2.

knowing where the bombs might hit.

My only uneasy moment came as we neared Matsuba and I crawled through the dark bomb bay to the waist of the plane. My clothes caught repeatedly on the bomb racks and for a moment I had a frightening thought I might be stuck there when the bottom bay opened to send off the bombs.

"Old man" of the crew was Sgt. Sam Smik, 30, Cleveland, O., the assistant radio operator. The youngest was Staff Sgt. Lawrence "Ox" Archer, tail gunner (768 Broadway) Lima, Ohio. He was 20 and the only married member of the enlisted crew.

BREWERS FAVORITES TO WIN AA

COLUMBUS, April 17.—(AP)—Sports writers in American Association cities have selected Milwaukee's Brewers as favorites to win their second successive pennant in the loop.

The Brewers polled eight of 15 first place votes and received 110 points out of a possible 120 on a basis of eight points for each first place, seven for second, etc., down to one for eighth.

Columbus' Little World Series champions were picked to finish second and Indianapolis third. Toledo was named as the fourth place club.

The writers picked St. Paul to head the second division, followed by Louisville in sixth, Kansas City in seventh and Minneapolis in eighth.

Columbus received four first place votes and Indianapolis three.

The association season opens Wednesday.

ACUTE APPENDICITIS GRIPS HARRY CAREY

NEW YORK, April 17.—(AP)—Broadway today doffed its hat to a trouper of the old school, Harry Carey, one of the stars of "—But Not Goodbye," who still believes the show must go on.

The veteran stage and screen actor walked to the wings after a scene near the end of the second act Saturday night. Backstagers noticed he was in pain, urged him to miss the remainder of the performance. But he insisted carrying on until the final curtain.

Then he hurried to his dressing room where he collapsed. Doctors diagnosed his illness as acute appendicitis.

SOLDIER ON TRIAL FOR AIDING ESCAPE

OMAHA, April 17.—(AP)—Pet. Dale H. Maple, accused of aiding the escape of two German prisoners of war and believed to be the first American soldier in history charged with the equivalent of treason, went on trial today at Ft. Leavenworth, Kans.

The 23-year-old Harvard graduate is charged with violation of the 58th article of war, which covers desertion and the 81st under which he is accused of helping two German war prisoners escape from Camp Hale, Colo., last February. The death penalty is possible under either.

AN ALEUTIAN ISLAND BASE, April 14.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Army bombing planes knocked at Japan's northern gateway for the fifth consecutive night last night and I rode a big four-engined Liberator to within less than 500 miles of the enemy's mainland.

The 11th Air Force bombers, operating from this outer Aleutian base on the longest all over water missions thus far in the global war, roared over the Kuriles "short line" to Tokyo as far south as Matsuba Island.

Matsuba, which was raided for the first time by planes of this same Liberator squadron March 16, represents the closest approach yet to the heart of the enemy's empire. This Japanese air base is only 450 miles from the Mikado's mainland at Hokkaido and less than 1,000 miles from Tokyo.

After reaching Matsuba, the plane I was on turned northeast up the Kuriles as far as Onokaton, the next island below frequently raided Paramushiro. Both Army and Navy planes were active in the Onokaton, Paramushiro and Shimushu area and we could see repeated flashes of reconnaissance flares.

Some crew members also reported seeing anti-aircraft shell bursts above the clouds, which concealed the islands from vision most of the time.

It must have been as annoying for the Japanese below the overcast as for us, above, not

Post-War Restrictions On Auto Production Is Expected In Industry

BY DAVID J. WILKIE

DETROIT, April 17—(AP)—Heads of the nation's automobile industry, vigorous proponents of what they term the "free enterprise system," will not be greatly surprised if production of motor vehicles is resumed under rigid governmental control during the first post-war year.

After that they look for the huge, accumulated, unfilled demand to create the greatest competitive era in the industry's history.

The industry heads generally profess to have no present information regarding the initial post-war production program. The impression prevails in many quarters close to the manufacturers, however, that when civilian production again is authorized each company will be permitted to turn out a percentage of the number of vehicles it assembled during the last year of unrestricted production.

The immediate pre-war curtailment of passenger car production was effected on a percentage basis. Complete suspension of output came in February, 1942.

In the opinion of many industry experts, a resumption of civilian production on such a basis automatically would exclude any newcomer from the field—at least until such time as the companies that were in production prior to Pearl Harbor once again are in full operations.

One of the most persistent rumors in automotive circles during the last year has been that Henry J. Kaiser, west coast shipbuilder, planned to enter automobile manufacturing after the war.

Some of the car makers have expressed the belief post-war automobiles will sell for around 25 per cent more than their pre-war counterparts. The increase, according to one prominent producer, will be considerably greater if authorized production during the first post-war year aggregates less than 2,000,000 units.

Whatever may be the post-war production program, the industry heads, though engaged in a $1,000,000-an-hour war material output job, are overlooking no opportunity to emphasize the importance of preparing now for the after-the-war tasks.

FOREST SHADE GRANGE MEETING VERY UNUSUAL

'An Evening at Home' Amid Kentucky Mountains Is Entertaining

The Forest Shade Grange met recently at the New Martinsburg Hall with Robert Creamer, worthy Master, presiding. Different bills relative to the curtailment of sale and transportation of liquor was presented by Mrs. Eldon Bethards and the Grange voted to write to Congress in favor of these bills. Loren Hynes, County Deputy, was present and spoke on the "needs and expectations of farmers after the war." Also on "Lions' Canteen and Victory Gardens." The Grange went on record again approving slow time for Washington Court House.

Lecturer Tway suggested Sunday, May 14, as Rural Sunday, climaxing with a basket dinner at the Sugar Grove Church.

Mrs. Leota Johnson had charge of a most unusual and interesting entertainment. She presented Mrs. George Hymrod and Loren Perry as Artilda and Josephus Brown in a skit entitled "An Evening at Home." The scene was a humble cottage in the Hills of Old Kentucky. In their evening at home they turned on the radio to various radio stations. Robert Creamer was announcer and presented different members of the cast in his humorous manner. Jimmy Tuff and "Terrible Terry" were Calvin Johnson and Dr. John G. Jordan who sang two duets. "She'll Be Comin' Round the Mountain" and "Lone Boy," a popular song of World War I, and told jokes involving New Martinsburg folks. Johnson also gave a harmonica solo, "A Bicycle Built For Two." Mrs. Loren Perry gave a reading "Speed of Cars," illustrated by song titles which was much enjoyed. The entire cast on another radio station sang a spiritual number "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen," followed by prayer by "Aunt Jemima," (Mrs. Perry).

Artilda in the home scene suggested that Josephus tune in on a religious program that opened with "My Faith Looks Up To Thee." Dr. Jordan and Mrs. Lavonne Creamer rendered a duet, "Alone, Mrs. John Jordan gave a reading, "Why Wait to Give Roses." The radio program was climaxed by a sermonette by Edward J. Cain using "The Parable of the Sower" as his subject. The radio program ended by all singing "Trust and Obey."

Another interesting feature of the evening was a technicolor movie secured through the efforts of Mrs. Johnson and Dr. Jordan. It was entitled "About Faces" and illustrated the development of teeth from babyhood to man. This was a very educational as well as entertaining picture. Robert Creamer aided in showing the film.

The committee served refreshments at the close of the meeting.

SUNNYSIDE CIRCUS IS CALLED SUCCESS

Standing Room Only at Grade School Show

Sunnyside School's circus was to the point—it provided plenty of good entertainment and admissions totaled $30, enough to finish paying for the reading circle books.

It was standing room only—people stood tip-toe in the hallway outside the auditorium, where the circus was held, to see. People stood on the stage and looked down on the circus ring drawn on the floor.

From beginning to end, the show, put on entirely by first, second and third graders with a little help in special acts from children in the upper grades, was all circus. Every act got a thunderous round of applause—the mid-gels, the elephant and giraffes, the bicycle riders, the dancers, the clowns. Everyone did his best, and, according to notes written to Warren Durkee, Sunnyside principal, the audience enjoyed every minute of the show.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Browning, music supervisor for elementary schools here, was in charge of the circus. Faculty members at Sunnyside directed individual acts and whipped the show into the complete whole.

GUARD COMPANY FATE IN HANDS OF PUBLIC NOW

Reorganization Committee To Meet Again Tuesday Night At City Hall

In order to give consideration to plans for aiding an immediate recruiting program to save the State Guard company here from being mustered out, a meeting of the committee of citizens who have been asked to help in this situation is to be held at the city council chamber on Tuesday at 7:30 P.M.

Arrangements are being made to expand the original committee so that various organizations, which would be expected to aid the plans, may be represented.

Captain Virgil Sexton, who has tentatively agreed to become commander of the reorganized company, following the recent resignation of Capt. W. B. Hyer, provided that the community is willing aggressively to get back of plans for reorganizing, is expected to attend the Tuesday meeting to make clear his attitude with reference to revamping this military organization.

The critical situation with reference to the State Guard company here was revealed during the past week following a visit to the city of Col. Earl W. Brannon. A quick survey of business and professional people of the community made clear that a feeling existed here that it would be serious and harmful to allow the company to be mustered out through lack of interest on the part of the public.

ELSEWHERE IN STATE

COLUMBUS, April 17—(P)—Adj. Gen. Donald F. Pancoast today announced Lt. Col. Clarence E. Rowe of Fostoria, had been promoted to colonel and placed in command of the new fourth regiment of the Ohio State Guard, with headquarters at Toledo.

Pancoast also reported the transfer of several companies in the present three regiments of the guard to the new fourth.

Rowe in civilian life is superintendent of the spark plug division of the Electric Auto-Lite Corp.'s plant at Fostoria. He is 44, was a corporal in the 14th infantry in the last war and a major in the old 148th infantry of the Ohio National Guard.

Pancoast said the third battalion of the first regiment—composed of Co. I of Kenton, Co. K of Sidney and Co. L of Piqua—had been transferred as a unit to the new fourth. Then, to bring the battalion to full strength, Co. H of Marion, second regiment, also was being transferred to become headquarters and service company of the new fourth, under command of James C. Ewing, who was promoted from captain to major.

Co. I of the present third becomes Co. C of the fourth, in charge of Edwin H. Struble of Findlay, promoted from first lieutenant to captain. Second Lt. Richard J. Boren of the company was promoted to first lieutenant. Kenneth L. Frost of Findlay was promoted from captain to major and placed in command of plans and training for the fourth regiment.

Pancoast said an enlistment campaign now is under way to bring the guard to full strength.

MRS. WILLARD BITZER SPEAKS AT YW MEET

Represents Washington C. H. In Panel Discussion

Part of a panel discussion on how the war has affected different types of communities was led by Mrs. Willard Bitzer at a district YWCA meeting in Columbus Saturday.

She sketched the influence of war on Washington C. H. and Fayette County, which was classified as an agricultural type. All phases of this effect, as it is shown in rural, industrial, college and small town centers, were discussed, with emphasis on the effect on youth. Juvenile delinquency was discussed as well, Mrs. Bitzer said.

Teen-age night clubs, a project which has been successfully carried out in many sections of the Western Pennsylvania and Ohio District of the YWCA, were explained to the 100 attending the meeting at the luncheon, served in the Reef Club, a typical teen-agers night spot.

PLANS ARE LAID FOR CUB SCOUT PROGRAM HERE

Possibility of Forming at Least Five Packs Brought Nearer at Meeting

Possibility of five cub scout packs, the first in two years, in Washington C. H., is closer to reality after a meeting of parents in Eastside, Sunnyside, Rose Avenue, Cherry Hill and Central grade schools.

Cub scouting is a prelude to the Boy Scout program. Walter Rettig, chairman of the Fayette County Boy Scout Executive Committee, explained. The program is designed for boys from nine to 12. At 12, a boy may join the full-fledged Boy Scouts of America.

Four Boy Scout executives from Columbus, headquarters for the Central Ohio Council, were here to take charge of the meetings in four of the schools. F. E. Hill, district commissioner of the Fayette County Chapter BSA and past member of the cub training committee of the Tecumseh Council in Greene County, was in charge of the fifth meeting. Columbus executives here were Les Bucher, Ralph Elsas, I. R. Ritzman and Frank Hess.

The next meetings will be Friday at 7:30 P.M. and the third and last will be a week later.

The purpose of the meetings is to give parents of potential cubs an idea of the program and to interest them in the cub movement. Parents of cubs are an integral part of the program, acting as leaders and den mothers of cub packs. Movies were shown in three of the schools, picturing cub scouting organizations.

In cub scouting, the center of activity is in the home—parents pass their sons on tests through the four stages—bobcat, wolf, bear and lion. An average of eight to six boys in a den keeps neighborhood play groups intact. When the boys are 12 and join the Boy Scouts—and most of them do—join—the outdoor activities come to the fore.

Attendance was "gratifying," Rettig said in discussing the first of the series. At Sunnyside, 19 were present, at Central, 22; Eastside, 22; Rose Avenue, eight and Cherry Hill, nine. Rettig said he hoped for even larger attendance.

ERB-HELP is the new formula containing medicinal juices from 12 Great Herbs; these herbs cleanse bowels, clear gas from stomach, act on sluggish liver and kidneys. Miserable people soon feel different all over. So don't go on suffering—Get Erb-Help. Finley's Drug Store.

Friday. The new program is PTA sponsored.

None Here Since 1942
The last cub scout activity died out here in 1942, largely from lack of a place to meet. James Yates, who was pack master then, said. The five den pack, started in 1940 and lasting about 18 months, was sponsored by the First Presbyterian Church.

Den mothers were Mrs. Robert Craig, Mrs. R. T. Andrews, Mrs. Haskell Thompson and Mrs. Dewey Sheidler. Mrs. Spencer Raabe, who also was a den mother, is now living in Columbus.

Den chiefs were Dick Hankins, Bill Carson, Bob Lucas, George Hall, Bill Boggess and David Young. Bill Boggess and Bob Lucas each served as chief for the same den.
